

The course is divided into two focus areas: Working at relationships and Drug issues. Each focus area is organised into four themes.

It is mandatory for schools to address both focus areas and all four themes in their Crossroads program. The content and the amount of time devoted to each focus area and theme are up to the individual school.

The four themes in each focus area are not organised in any hierarchical order. The selection of specific program content and methods of delivery will be carried out at the school level.

Suggested content

Suggested content is included for each theme. Teachers should adapt or select content which best meets the needs of their students.

Teacher notes

Teacher notes provide suggestions and background information related to the themes. The notes highlight particular aspects which teachers should consider when teaching the course.
